History of Phoenix

By 1870, Phoenix had been named. An exact town site needed to be selected, and the town had to be administered. Thus was the Salt River Valley Town Association formed, and an area 1 mile long and 1/2 mile wide was designated the town site. It ran from Jackson Street north to Van Buren, and 7th Street to 7th Avenue; the intersection of Washington Street and Central Avenue (originally Center Street) was considered the center. The town site is mostly the present day downtown business area.

The territorial legislature created Maricopa County in 1871, by dividing Yavapai County. The first church and store were also established in that year. The first elected sheriff, Tom Barnum ran unopposed, also in 1871; his two opponents had a shootout, which killed one, and lead the other to withdraw his name.

1872 saw the first school, and 1874 the first telegraph line, which was operated by Morris Goldwater from his father's downtown store. By 1875, Phoenix was home to 16 saloons, and 4 dance halls, plus a couple of gambling establishments, mostly along "Whiskey

Row" (north side of Washington Street)-not bad, for a town not yet 10 years old!

Oktoberfest

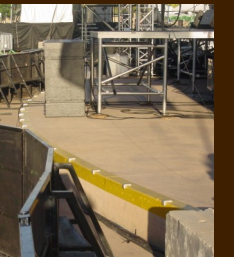

The Tempe Oktoberfest, presented by Tempe Sister Cities is the largest, and probably oldest Oktoberfest in Arizona. Styled after the world famous Munich Oktoberfest, this event is also the first event that T.E.A.M. Security worked after starting in business in 1993. 16 years later, it is still one of our favorite events and a ton of fun for not just everyone attending, but for all of us too. This year had record crowds once again, great weather and beers from all over the world. With activities for all members of the family, free admission and a lot of flair and fair from "Deutschland", good times are pretty much guaranteed.

Equipment Spotlight

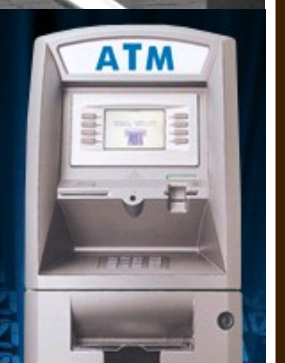

Our professional stage barricade is mostly used to contain or control large groups of people, especially in front of a stage or celebrity viewing area. It includes a "step" on the inside which allows our guards leverage when they are working the barricade area during shows, or need an elevated view of crowd density or activity. It is also made to be very durable and sustain the active crowds that tend to stand in front of it at concerts. It is specifically manufactured to withstand many thousands of pounds of force. With our barricade you can lock the pieces together to create a strong line that will hold together, and don't have the pieces moving apart from each other when they are being pushed against. The easy inter-connecting pieces also save time and make setup easy. Another feature that makes the barricades more maneuverable and easy to store, is the ability to fold-down flat. At the end of the show, you can break the barricade down quickly into a ready-to-store state. We can also create custom pieces and curved pieces to create the look as shown below on the far right side. Another custom feature we can add to any configuration of our stage barricade is room underneath to run wires and cable clusters for mix or remote locations. A stage barricade needs to be strong, yet practical and flexible in application, and ours definitely is what you will want to use.

Eclipse Cash Systems, founded in 2003 by Arizona State University graduates Derek and Justin Smith, is a valley based ATM company that has grown since its inception to provide nationwide service. Eclipse began its business operations by providing portable ATM solutions to some of the largest events in the United States including the Super Bowl and larger State fairs. Eclipse was able to stand out by providing innovative solutions to event venues, such as being one of the first companies to incorporate wireless communication into our ATM services. As a result, Eclipse was able to offer unique location placements that had previously been restricted by the need for phone line access, in turn leading to greater visibility and increased transaction volume.

Eclipse's growth in the event ATM placement business led to opportunities to become a national distributor and processor of ATM's. Although the company has grown in size, Eclipse remains true to its local roots, continuing to operate and maintain ATM's throughout the valley. In regards to the company's success, Derek Smith stated "We take great pride in offering complete transparency to our customers, and have built our reputation upon providing exceptional customer service and support. We look forward to continued growth into the future through utilizing the same work ethic that has brought us to where we are today."
