Well...we made it through another year. Hopefully you are all still in one piece and not to worn out from all of the festivities over the holiday season, because we are just getting started.

We have got a ton of work coming up this month and next, up to but not including the Super Bowl. Please make sure that you are calling in to schedule every week. I'm sure that the schedulers would love to hear from you and/or see your happy shiny face.

I have a couple of the monthly training classes this month. Report writing on January 15th at 1800 (6 pm), Radio class on January 22nd at 1800 (6 pm), and I will be contacting some folks to attend a vehicle certification class which is tentatively scheduled for January 17th at 1800 (6 pm).

We have got a BUNCH of new employees. I want to see all of you senior guys taking these folks under your wings and show them the how much we take pride in the work we do. Help them understand what it means to be part of a team and more importantly part of this family. I have said it before and I say it again now, they are the future of this company. Let's help them get off on the right foot.

That is about all I have for you right now. I look forward to seeing you in the field.

The Top 12 New Year's Resolutions Made by Pets

12. Have a torrid one-night stand with a street mutt.
 11. Try to understand that the cat is from Venus and I am from Mars.
 10. I will no longer be beholden to the sound of the can opener.
 9. Circulate petition that Leg Humping be a juried competition in major dog shows.
 8. Call PETA and tell them what that surgical mask-wearing freak does to us when no one is around.
 7. Take time from busy schedule to stop and smell the behinds.
 6. Hamster: Don't let them figure out I'm just a rat on 'roids, or they'll flush my ass.
 5. Always scoot before licking.
 4. Grow opposable thumb; break into pantry; decide for MYSELF how much food is too much.
 3. Get out of the castle more, maybe swim counter-clockwise this year.
 2. January 1st: Kill the sock! Must kill the sock! January 2nd - December 31: Re-live victory over the sock.
- and the Number 1 New Year's Resolutions Made by Pets...
1. I will NOT chase the damned stick unless I see it LEAVE HIS HAND

It seems to be an epidemic of slowly spiraling downward, the values and morals of the economy. Society does not support families, integrity, personal character and consequences of actions. People do not want to take responsibility for their actions. So, as the world around us is in chaos, how can we make a difference? One moment at a time. One person at a time. Visit Washington D.C. and view the monuments and writings of those that founded this Great Country. Look into some history, not just the wars or the outcomes, but how people lived. How they treated their neighbors, how their towns acted towards one another. The list goes on and on. If you choose not to work on the above mentioned research, ask your grand parents, or someone else's grand parents. "for the one that looks, the answer is available"

Paul Harvey Writes:
We tried so hard to make things better for our kids that we made them worse. For my grandchildren, I'd like better.

I'd really like for them to know about hand me down clothes and homemade ice cream and left-over meat loaf sandwiches. I really would...

I hope you learn humility by being humiliated, and that you learn honesty by being cheated.

I hope you learn to make your own bed and mow the lawn and wash the car.
And I really hope nobody gives you a brand new car when you are sixteen.

It will be good if at least one time you can see puppies born and your old dog put to sleep.
I hope you get a black eye fighting for something you believe in.
I hope you have to share a bedroom with your younger brother/sister.
And it's all right if you have to draw a line down the middle of the room, but when he wants to crawl under the covers with you because he's scared, I hope you let him.
When you want to see a movie and your little brother/sister wants to tag along, I hope you'll let him/her.
I hope you have to walk uphill to school with your friends and that you live in a town where you can do it safely.
On rainy days when you have to catch a ride, I hope you don't ask your driver to drop you two blocks away so you won't be seen riding with someone as uncool as your Mom.
If you want a slingshot, I hope your Dad teaches you how to make one instead of buying one. I hope you learn to dig in the dirt and read books.
When you learn to use computers, I hope you also learn to add and subtract in your head.
I hope you get teased by your friends when you have your first crush on a boy\girl, and when you talk back to your mother that you learn what ivory soap tastes like.

May you skin your knee climbing a mountain, burn your hand on a stove and stick your tongue on a frozen flagpole.
I don't care if you try a beer once, but I hope you don't like it... And if a friend offers you dope or a joint, I hope you realize he is not your friend.
I sure hope you make time to sit on a porch with your Grandma/Grandpa and go fishing with your Uncle.
May you feel sorrow at a funeral and joy during the holidays.
I hope your mother punishes you when you throw a baseball through your neighbor's window and that she hugs you and kisses you at Hannukah/Christmas time when you give her a plaster mold of your hand.
These things I wish for you - tough times and disappointment, hard work and happiness. To me, it's the only way to appreciate life.
Written with a pen. Sealed with a kiss. I'm here for you. And if I die before you do, I'll go to heaven and wait for you.
Share this with all of your friends. We secure our friends, not by accepting favors, but by doing them.
We can learn many things from the past to change the future.

Happy New Years. I hope all of you had a great time at the block party, or where ever you worked. As many of you already know, we are not going to slow down. With Barrett Jackson and the Super bowl, Monster trucks and Super cross, we will be very busy for the next couple of months. I wish all of you a belated "Happy Holidays" and hope that all of you remembered the true "reason for the season".

I told someone in the office the other day that no matter what bad things happen to you, if you sit down and write out all of the blessings that you have received over the course of your life, you will quickly realize that your blessings will out way the bad. Something to think about when you are feeling blue.

Last, but certainly not least, I would like to thank the logistics crew for all of the hard work that they have put in to make everything happen not only this month, but all year. Most people have no idea how much work has to be done behind the scenes in order to make an event happen, especially the big events. With out my crew, I/we could not pull off what we, as a TEAM do. THANK YOU!

Stay safe out there,
Jeff

Happy New Year everyone! It's time for new beginnings, new goals, and lots of work for everyone! J

This month I want to write about germs because it's that time of year where people are constantly getting sick. I learned a lot about germs at the last company I worked for, and just thought I'd share some tidbits.

The most effective weapon you have against germs is good hand-washing practices. Below is an excerpt from an article on CNN.com, articulating proper hand-washing habits and also information on what can happen if you fail to keep your hands clean!

Proper hand washing with soap and water

- Follow these instructions for washing with soap and water:
- Wet your hands with warm, running water and apply liquid or clean bar soap. Lather well.
- Rub your hands vigorously together for at least 15 seconds.
- Scrub all surfaces, including the backs of your hands, wrists, between your fingers and under your finger-nails.

- Rinse well.
- Dry your hands with a clean or disposable towel.
- Use a towel to turn off the faucet.

Despite the proven health benefits of hand washing, many people don't practice this habit as often as they should — even after using the bathroom. Throughout the day you accumulate germs on your hands from a variety of sources, such as direct contact with people, contaminated surfaces, foods, even animals and animal waste. If you don't wash your hands frequently enough, you can infect yourself with these germs by touching your eyes, nose or mouth. And you can spread these germs to others by touching them or by touching surfaces that they also touch, such as doorknobs. Infectious diseases commonly spread through hand-to-hand contact include the common cold, flu and several gastrointestinal disorders, such as infectious diarrhea. While most people will get over a cold, the flu is much more serious. Some people with the flu, particularly older adults and people with chronic medical problems, can develop pneumonia. The combination of the flu and pneumonia, in fact, is the seventh leading cause of death among Americans.

Inadequate hand hygiene also contributes to food-related illnesses, such as salmonella and E. coli infection. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, as many as 76 million Americans contract a food-borne illness each year. Of these, about 5,000 die as a result of their illness. Others experience the annoying symptoms of nausea, vomiting and diarrhea.

As you can see, dirty hands can lead to less-than-desirable conditions. Anti-bacterial gel is another handy product that you can carry with you, in case you don't have one of those portable sinks.

In addition, below you will find a list of the top 12 germiest places, and how to help eliminate the bacteria. I found it on a "Power Pilates Blog".

1. Your Kitchen Sink- Keep counters and sinks clean by using an anti-bacterial product especially after fruits and vegetables have been prepared. Clean the sink twice a week with 1 tbsp of chlorine bleach and 1 quart of water. That should get rid of the 500,000 bacteria per square inch in the drain.

2. Airplane Bathrooms- Use a toilet seat cover when possible and always handle the seat, lid, tap and doorknob with a paper towel. Close the lid before you flush and if there is no lid, make a fast escape to avoid spewing particles filled with bacteria.

3. Wet Laundry- E. Coli tends to hang out on wet clothes. Always wash your hands after putting clothes in the dryer and try to run your washer and dryer at 150 degrees to kill most of the germs.

4. Shopping Cart Handles- Saliva, bacteria and fecal matter can all be found at your local grocery store on the shopping cart handles. Yuck! To avoid this, bring your own sanitizer (many stores have sanitizer wipes right next to the carts) or cart handle cover. Always have raw meat put in a plastic bag to avoid the juices getting on your hands or other food items.

5. Public Drinking Fountains- Send your child to school with hand sanitizer and plenty of water so they do not have to use the water fountain. There is anywhere from 62,000 to 2.7 million bacteria per square inch of the spigot! If schools wiped down desks with an antibacterial wipe everyday, child-absenteeism would drop by half.

6. ATM Buttons- Use your hand sanitizer after touching the ATM buttons and handling the money. The average key contains over 1,200 germs.

7. Your Handbag- Try to avoid placing your purse on the floor of public places. Always keep your purse off the kitchen counter and wipe down your bag every few days with a mild disinfectant.

8. Playgrounds- Wipe children's hands with a sanitizer before giving them a snack and after leaving the park. Blood, mucus, urine and saliva were all found at the playgrounds sampled. Most bugs cannot survive hot, sunny days so head to the park when the sun is shining!

9. Mats and Machines at Health Clubs- Wipe down the machines and mats before you use them to avoid catching any antibiotic-resistant infections. Bring your own mat and towel and shower (with your own shower sandals) after a workout to wash off any germs.

10. Your Bathtub- Clean your tub once weekly with a disinfectant. Scrub the tub and make sure the surface is dry. A whopping 26% of the tubs tested had staphylococcus bacteria.

11. Your Office Phone- Clean your office phone, computer and desk weekly to avoid the 25,000 germs lurking per square inch. Surprisingly, women had germier desks than men!

12. The Hotel Remote Control- Cold viruses have been found on everything from the remote control to door handles to pens. Make sure you bring a travel sanitizer to wipe down the handles, TV remote, faucets, telephone and light switches. Never use that nasty comforter and always wear something on your feet. Trust me, you do not want to know what they found there!

And just a few more facts on germs, from <http://www.cleaning101.com/health/health/cleaninghealth10.cfm>:

Americans spend about $5 billion each year on their colds _ about $3 billion on doctors' visits and $2 billion on treatments.

An estimated 60 million days of school and 50 million days of work are lost annually because of the common cold.

Some 5.5 million visits to doctors' offices each year are due to skin infections.

So remember to wash your hands CONSTANTLY! It will save your health, save you money (less doctor visits!) and also help you earn more money by being well and able to come to work and MAKE money!

Take care - AshBoo

Happy New Year!

I have accepted the fact that few people get me, and that my boss leads an entire myspace group of those people, but holy cow, was it difficult to live in the moment this last year. Still, I found bits and pieces of time to make everyone remember that life is fleeting, so we have an obligation to future generations to live it fully. And I personally think Mick truly enjoyed his lesson on present wrapping and how to make candy cane reindeer. Laughter is infectious, and sometimes in the midst of the shifts we work and the things we see and do, it becomes difficult to find the humor. I assure it is there, though. One of the biggest changes at T.E.A.M. in the last year was Jeff Palavicini leaving on sabbatical. Though I miss him something fierce, rather than dwell, I just think of him running around the Outback trying to find a koala, a kangaroo, and figuring out how in the hell to get Marlies a panda. Another good laugh is for anyone at Tempe 4th who realized just how close to actually killing each other Mick and I were. (Marz, TJ, I still owe you for that.) My favorite is that only Butch, our dear beloved Butch, could pick up a chick at ArtsFest. On day 2 of non-stop rain. I have to admit, the boys' got game. He could give the rest of you guys a serious run for your money..... This year has brought us some of the greatest highs and the worst of lows. Yet, through everything, the job got done. Where one of us faltered, someone else immediately stepped up to shoulder the task.

www.teamsecurity.net
[www.myspace/
team_security.com](http://www.myspace/team_security.com)

We truly grew as a team this year, and it shows.

After reading Mick's article in advance, I was terribly pleased to hear that "clear" and her antics would no longer have to occupy such a focus point in his ramblings. I look forward to a new year of someone else being the donkey's butt..

And what a year ahead of us. The first month alone brings several of our largest events. We will be pushed to the limits, personally and professionally.

However, in the midst of all that, it is very important that none of you forget the simple reason we were even hired in the first place. We are to keep the public safe. Regardless of the event, the patrons and such have not a clue as to the security concerns we look at for each event. That is our job; to see the things they don't and to help to prevent issues from arising. Remember to be diligent, smart, and observant. Every post we have is for a reason, and if any of them are shoddily staffed or ignored, it compromises the security of the entire event or venue.

So to briefly touch on some of the big things we have going on in the next month:

SuperCross: I love this event. It is loud and dirty and noisy and fast. What girl wouldn't love that? It is an annual event held at Chase Field. It is a huge call for us, and some long hours, and so, so worth it. I personally like working in pit row. Keeping the crowds under control, and out of the way of the bikes coming through can be tricky at best, but is a lot of fun.

Barrett-Jackson: The granddaddy car auction. Held up in Scottsdale at Westworld, you will see some of the most beautiful cars in the world, for sale. It is an amazing event to be a part of, and I am glad we are doing it this year.

Rock n Roll Marathon:

Another of our loud and busy events, PFChang's sponsors it annually

The SuperBowl: I need to say nothing more on that.....

A new Season at Dodge:

Taking the role at Dodge Theatre that we did in the last year has been a huge professional coup.

The supervisors and employees who work out there are always courteous and polite. Keep it up....

Thank you all for another year of commitment and hard work, and may the coming year be even more interesting.

Marlies' Notes

Well, there's another month that has passed, quickly. I hope everyone had a wonderful Christmas, Hanukkah, and or Kwanzaa and a Happy New Year. I know everyone's New Year was at Block Party, I was there too.

Well as we all always know, I am slammed with work, so I am going to make this short and sweet.

As we all know, it is tax time. Yes, I understand everyone is inquiring about W-2's but 2007 just ended, and W-2's take some time to prepare. So please be patient with me. All W-2 will be mailed on the 30th of January. I have them done now so come by anytime to pick them up. If you don't pick your W-2 up by the 29th, they will be mailed on the 30th. I appreciate everyone's help with this, there will be a lot of W-2's to do this year, so this will be a busy month for us. Have a great month, and I will talk to you next month.

Mick Hirko

I hope all of you had a wonderful Christmas. For me, it was a nice time to spend with family, and to relax for a minute before it gets super busy. I do miss the snow that goes with Christmas, but do not miss the cold. One of the reasons to live in Arizona, on an ever shrinking list....Santa was good to me, because he brought me a whole day without Clear. It was "clearly" a great Christmas!

I love my truck. What makes me think of that is that I bought it just after Christmas 4 years ago. I spend a lot of time in it, and put a lot of miles on it. Thanks to Jeff Swanson, it has a very strong high performance package under the hood. It is not so much the speed of it that brings me pride and comfort, rather it is a very simple aspect that is most important to me. It does not matter how fast I am going, I can always push down, and it will always give me a very powerful burst of additional power. It has saved me from many an idiot on the road, prevented accidents, and on one or two occasions gotten me away from potentially very bad situations. T.E.A.M. is a lot like that too. When ever I think we are close to our capacity, I am amazed that by pushing a bit harder, how much more power can be produced. In the coming weeks and months, that pedal will be pushed repeatedly. No sooner out of Block Party, we turn our focus onto Super Cross, Rock and Roll Marathon, Barrett-Jackson and Monster Trucks. As these are ending, we are moving right into Super Bowl events. As they say: "no rest for the wicked".

2007 is a year that most of us glad to leave behind. Don't get me wrong - many good things happened in 2007. We were joined by some terrific new additions to the office, we were awarded the Phoenix, Glendale and Tempe security contracts, had many, many great new members join our team. 2007 also brought some intense pain and frustration. The worst probably the death of Anthony Angstadt, killed by a drunk driver. There were other events that cast a shadow on the year and I really do not care to dwell on the negative, as there is too much good to report. The whole year just had kind of a cloud over it, and most people I spoke to said the same thing - It was a very fast year, and they are glad it is ending. Well, here is to a much slower 2008, a successful year, with many great things coming our way. There is a reason we are so successful - It is because we are very good at what we do, and the reason we are good at what we do is because of all of you. You make us great each and every day, and I thank you for that. I also want to warn you again - the next 5 or 6 weeks are going to be long and hard on all of us. We are very proud of our commitments, and gladly accepted the challenges. Our clients have many choices, and we appreciate the opportunity, and will work hard to live up to our reputation. Especially with the Super Bowl coming, we are doing a ton of huge events, and the eyes of the world will be directed towards Phoenix for a few days. I want to remind everybody that money will be flowing freely, and that people will try and tempt you with offers and bribes - We do not accept gifts, gratuities or bribes. Anyone caught accepting anything of value will be disciplined and prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. The offers will be massive, but no money in the world is worth a criminal record. You never know who is offering you the money. It is one of our secret shoppers, is it NFL security or somebody else testing you? You don't know, and I hope that everybody understands the importance of what we do.

In the coming year, we pledge to work harder at being even better. We will be providing many more training opportunities, and will be implementing an advanced training curriculum for all new employees. We will be expanding training in into several new areas, as well as bringing back some excellent leadership/supervisor training programs. Frank Herbert will be spearheading these programs, and keep your eyes and ears open for these challenges. We al want to work smarter and better in 2008 in providing the best service we can. Along those lines, we will also be implementing a new policy that should be pleasing many of you - Starting January 1st, if an employee No Call No Shows a shift, not only will they be terminated, but also be held financially accountable for the cost of filling that shift, which includes the time the schedulers are spending on finding a replacement, the cost in overtime, if we have to put a guard there in overtime, and the lost revenue from not having a guard there on time.

We in no way will tolerate not showing up for a shift. Every action has consequences, and if you take a shift, you are responsible for completing it. It is your commitment, and those who simply do not show up demonstrate a clear lack of responsibility, and we can only send Mark Jimenez to so many places at the same time. I do not think that most people realize the cost of someone not showing up to their committed shifts. It is not just economic. It also takes a toll on the schedulers, and after a while they become very cynical, because so many people have showed lack of integrity over time, that they do not want to trust new guards. To our clients it sends the same negative signal, that we are not professional, and do not complete what we commit to. And those employees that we drag away from their friends family and sleep again and again to cover a post that they were not planning on being at until someone did not show up to work it? Thus, very few people can do a lot of damage to very many, and I pledge to all of you that we will work harder in 2008 to eliminate employees not showing up for shifts. We are not going to tolerate it. If someone does not show up for their shift, they will no longer have a job, and they are going to have to pay for their irresponsibility. There will be zero tolerance towards this behavior. We want to send a very loud and clear message: If you are too irresponsible to fulfill your commitments and want a job, but not to have to work, then we do not want you here. Go somewhere else. This is the funnest (You have any idea how much this annoys Clear?) job you will ever have, but it is a job, and has its responsibilities.

I recently ran into one of our clients that I used to write about on a regular basis, and he was not happy. Oh, it had nothing to do with our service. It was based on that I no longer mentioned him in our newsletter. He had gotten really upset a long time ago, because I had (factually) written some things that he had done which apparently had worked themselves onto the internet. Well, after a while, it got to the point where I had to have out attorney read all my newsletter articles before they went to print, and this client was threatening to not renew our contract if I did not pull those articles I had written about him off of the internet. I went as far as giving him a new identity, so no one knew who I was writing about. What ever happened to the truth setting you free? Well, after our conversation, I realized I just can not win for losing. So, in 2008, I will again be chronicling the adventures of Grandon, the lead-footed client from the west side. I am really sorry, but I did discover a news fact - Once something is on the internet, it never really goes away, so I apologize in advance if what I write completely destroys Grandon's reputation on the internet, but I have pledged myself to being truthful. So, Grandon, you better clean out those closets, get rid of those skeletons (especially those of little puppy dogs) and be very, very careful, because T.E.A.M. Cents is watching you. Oh, and your Office Manager "Biffany" (Name changed to protect the guilty) will not help you. She is on our watch list, too.

All kidding aside, I want to wish all of you a wonderful and prosperous 2008. Never take for granted what you have, or not be grateful for the many blessings you have, as they can be torn from you in the blink of an eye. Do not go a day without telling those that you love that you do love them, and cherish every moment you have with them. Live life and love life. It is short but can be wonderful if we let it. Be safe, keep the peace, and I'll see you all out there in the coming weeks.
