Happy New Year!

"Out with the old, in with the new." If only I could apply that with some of the items around my house. I tend to hang on to things for sentimental value. That's also why I take so many pictures. MEMORIES!

With the New Year we tend to make new goals and resolutions for ourselves. So now I am thinking about what mine will be.

I want to be more patient. I don't know how or why, but I've lost my patience threshold over the years, and the 1st impression I gave to my new neighbors was probably that I am a grumpy old wife to that really nice guy they met earlier that day (my husband). They were blocking my driveway with their moving truck and I thought that was very inconsiderate. But then Kyle told me they were very nice and it made me feel bad.

I don't want to stress out so much. I tend to carry a lot of weight on my shoulders and stress over things a lot. The last time I went to my friend's house to get my hair done, she informed me I had a line of gray hairs! I mean I am seriously aging myself!

I need to exercise on a regular basis. The older we get, the more fragile we get and I believe that exercise prolongs life and promotes health. I am always so tired, so I never feel like exercising but I guess I'm just going to have to get over it and push my limits. Ugh...sounds so fun already.

I want to be more positive. I really love to make people laugh, in case you haven't noticed. I also like to help people. It feels good to make someone's day. I know I can be super negative, but it's not good for anybody, including myself.

I really would like to learn how to play my guitar. I got to practice for a little bit last month but I never continually practice, and then I have to re-learn everything!

I also want to get more fluent with HTML. It's so cool how it works, and how all those funny words and symbols translate into a picture. I would really like to be proficient at it.

I want to do more projects with my son. I like to explain and show my son WHY and HOW stuff works. My time is pretty limited, so I don't do a whole lot of that kind of stuff with him. But he's only a kid once and I think it's important. I want to make sure his childhood is magical like mine was.

Talk to my relatives and friends back home more. I used to call my parents every weekend, and now I don't talk to them nearly as much. It's important to stay in touch with the people you care about. I swear as I get older, time speeds up faster and faster!

Those are some of my goals. Have you thought about what you are going to aim for?

I hope you all have a wonderful January. Bundle up. It IS the de-

Another year has come and gone. It's now time to start thinking about making that New Year's resolution that you make every year, the one you know you're not going to keep. So this year, really sit down and think about it. Make sure, if you are going to make a resolution, that it is something that means a lot to you. Setting high goals for yourself is a great thing to do, but make sure your goals are achievable. Otherwise, you are just setting yourself up for failure when February or March comes around.

This Month in History

THIS MONTH IN HISTORY

January 1, 1776 - During the American Revolution, George Washington unveiled the Grand Union Flag, the first national flag in America.

January 2, 1942 - During World War II, the Japanese captured the Philippines capital of Manila and the nearby air base at Cavite

January 3, 1959 - Alaska was admitted as the 49th U.S. state with a land mass almost one-fifth the size of the entire lower 48 states.

January 4, 1790 - President George Washington delivered the first State of the Union address.

January 5, 1972 - President Richard Nixon signed a bill approving $5.5 billion over six years to build and test the NASA space shuttle.

January 6, 1941 - President Franklin Roosevelt delivered his State of the Union address to Congress asking for support for the lend-lease program aiding Allies fighting the Axis powers. Roosevelt also defined four essential freedoms worth defending; freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from want, and freedom from fear.

January 7, 1999 - The first presidential impeachment trial in 130 years began as members of the U.S. Senate were sworn in by Supreme Court Chief Justice William Rehnquist to decide whether President Clinton should be removed from office. House prosecutors had delivered two articles of impeachment charging Clinton with perjury and obstruction of justice.

January 8, 1982 - The American Telephone and Telegraph (AT&T) company was broken up as a result of an antitrust suit. AT&T gave up 22 local Bell system companies, opening the U.S. telephone system to competition.

January 9 - Richard M. Nixon (1913-1994) the 37th U.S. President, was born in Yorba Linda, California. He served as vice president under Dwight D. Eisenhower from 1953-61, then made an unsuccessful run for the presidency, narrowly losing to John F. Kennedy. Nixon ran for governor of California in 1962 and lost. He then told reporters he was leaving politics. However, he re-emerged in 1968 and ran a successful presidential campaign against Hubert Humphrey. He won re-election by a landslide in 1972, but re-signed two years later amid impeachment proceedings resulting from the Watergate scandal.

January 10, 1776 - Common Sense, a fifty page pamphlet by Thomas Paine, was published. It sold over 500,000 copies in America and Europe, influencing, among others, the authors of the Declaration of Independence.

January 11, 1964 - The U.S. Surgeon General declared cigarettes may be hazardous to health, the first such official government report.

January 12, 1991 - Congress authorized President George Bush to use military force against Iraq following its invasion of Kuwait.

January 13, 1990 - Douglas Wilder of Virginia became the first Black American governor in the U.S. as he took the oath of office in Richmond.

January 14-23, 1943 - President Franklin Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill met at Casablanca, Morocco, to work on a strategy for concluding World War II. At the conclusion of the conference, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill held a news conference at which Roosevelt surprisingly announced that peace would come "by the total elimination of German and Japanese war power. That means the unconditional surrender of Germany, Italy and Japan."

During Desert Shield / Desert Storm I heard Red Skelton, one of the funniest men around; recite the meaning of the Pledge of Allegiance on the radio. However this time he wasn't being funny. He was serious. After I heard this, researched and probed a little more into what he had said, I reflected about my childhood growing up. We always recited the Pledge of Allegiance every morning as a respect to our country. When was the last time you or any of your kids did this? Do you even know the words, the meaning? Below is the writing of what Red Skelton published and what was recited on the radio that day...

Commentary on the Pledge of Allegiance
By Red Skelton

As a schoolboy, one of Red Skelton's teachers explained the words and meaning of the Pledge of Allegiance to his class. Skelton later wrote down, and eventually recorded, his recollection of this lecture. It is followed by an observation of his own.

I - - Me; an individual; a committee of one.
Pledge - - Dedicate all of my worldly goods to give without self-pity.
Allegiance - - My love and my devotion.
To the Flag - - Our standard; Old Glory ; a symbol of Freedom; wherever she waves there is respect, because your loyalty has given her a dignity that shouts, Freedom is everybody's job.

United - - That means that we have all come together.
States - - Individual communities that have united into forty-eight great states. Forty-eight individual communities with pride and dignity and purpose. All divided with imaginary boundaries, yet united to a common purpose, and that is love for country.
And to the Republic - - Republic--a state in which sovereign power is invested in representatives chosen by the people to govern. And government is the people; and it's from the people to the leaders, not from the leaders to the people.
For which it stands
One Nation - - One Nation--meaning, so blessed by God.
Indivisible - - Incapable of being divided.
With Liberty - - Which is Freedom; the right of power to live one's own life, without threats, fear, or some sort of retaliation.
And Justice - - The principle, or qualities, of dealing fairly with others.
For All - - For All--which means, boys and girls, it's as much your country as it is mine.
And now, boys and girls, let me hear you recite the Pledge of Allegiance: I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic, for which it stands; one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.
Since I was a small boy, two states have been added to our country, and two words have been added to the Pledge of Allegiance: Under God. Wouldn't it be a pity if someone said that this is a prayer, and that would be eliminated from schools, too?
-Red Skelton
The simplest things sometimes are the most important. The smallest word in the dictionary is "if". You can replace it with "do" which would require accountability, respect for others and self, responsibility, trust and honesty. So, it's very simple. Are you one who will stand up and fight for the principles this country was founded on or will you sit idly by, complain and watch things around you just happen?

Whatever you decide, please do not forget, do not never ever forget, FREEDOM is not free. Someone gave their life for you, someone you may not even know.

It seems like time continues to move faster and faster the older I get. There just doesn't seem to be enough hours in the day to get everything done.

I have been researching this for awhile now and have come up with some good news on how to change this from continuing on. It all starts with me.

There are certain disciplines that can I can use as guidelines in my day to incorporate other items of interest for accomplishment. I must decide to change. Once I do that the possibilities are endless. Simple steps making bigger results.

Life is a mindset. Everyone has one; some just don't use it, most of us, not to its potential. We can change our possibilities and the outcome of life if we change our mindset.

The New Year is upon us and we all have the opportunity to live the life we want. How many of us will make the changes necessary?

Accomplish your goals, and then create new ones.

Especially around this time of year it is difficult to write the newsletter. I know Clear thinks I wait until the last minute just to drive her crazy. That is actually only a secondary benefit. We write the newsletter for the coming month several weeks before the beginning of the next month. The main reason it is difficult for me around this time of the year is that it is Christmas, and my thoughts are on the blessings of the season, and not thinking about January. I think about all the things I am grateful for, my wonderful family, our vocational success, to work with some of the greatest people one could hope for (In spite of that, we are not getting rid of Clear), the many great clients we have, that have contributed to our success, and the many other things that make my life so blessed. We should spend time the rest of the year thinking about our blessings. Those things that make our lives great do so all year round, and we should always be grateful.

January will be a busy month for us, and one of my blessings is that because of Barrett-Jackson, Clear will be out of the office most of the month. My blessings just continue on and on. But seriously, there are a lot of things coming up and we are looking forward to, and hopefully get a lot busier again, as the economy improves and more events start ramping up again.

I would like to take a second to wish "Happy Trails" to our good friend Biffany. She recently left that venue in the West Valley we are not allowed to mention, and took a dream job on the east coast. We wish her all the best. You may have, as diligent readers, noticed that we had not mentioned her or her boss Grandon lately. Well, it turned out that they have better lawyers than we realized, and we were by court order not allowed to report on them. It turns out that since we post our newsletter on our website, we have developed a world wide following, and as such, their exploits gained more attention than we initially intended. It further turns out that our reports of puppy torture, wild parties with the stars and some other, very strange ritualistic events that Grandon was involved in, became searchable on Google, because of our internet newsletter posting. So, several years ago, when Grandon was applying for a position in Bolivia, his... shall we say "exploits" came up in the interview. Yeah, it turns out that what you post on the internet never really goes away. So, since then, we have been forced by their lawyers to conceal their identity (we could not stop reporting about them all together, and some of the things they do is just too funny or news worthy). We have so cleverly changed their names that no one could ever figure out who they really are. I recently heard that Sam over at Jobing.com was prevented from buying a puppy for his wife for Christmas, but I am sure that is just a coincidence....

Ah, the power of the internet. Who would have thunk? Anyway, Biffany - Thanks for being a friend, we all wish you well, and we hope that we might get a guest editorial from you every once in a while from out at the high seas, while you are rocking and rolling (or is that the ship?) with the big stars.

Well, I need to get going. Some last minute shopping still needs to be done. I still need to find a little gift for Clear. It turns out that arsenic is a lot harder to buy than I thought. Interestingly, the word "gift" means poison in German.

I wish all of you a wonderful and prosperous and healthy 2010. Hard to believe it has been a decade since Y2K...Keep the Peace, be safe and I'll see you out there, and please keep all of our troops in your thoughts and in your prayers.
